COLLEGE SONG

On the heights so proudly standing
Strong against the blue,
High towers gleam commanding,
Loyal hearts beat true!
For Manhattanville sing proudly,
Swell the mighty song;
Till the echoes ring out loudly
All the ages long.

SENIOR SONG

Unwavering hearts beat faster,
Loyal voices ring,
While to Manhattanville
Proudly do we sing.
Far-reaching echoes bear
Tales of loyalty,
And '42 will praise thy name eternally.

VALERIE AISSA

67-87 Exeter Street
Forest Hills, New York

Dominican Academy
New York City

VALERIE is a transfer student and so she's only been with us for two years. However if we believe, as most do, that friends are among the valuable things in life, Valerie did not suffer by coming so late for Valerie's friends are hard to name in that they are many. In history we all admire those whose sympathies lie with the underprivileged classes, and Valerie hopes to take up work among them. Anyone who does social work is worthy of praise in this zealous field. Valerie loves comedy at the theatre and hates to waste time at movies containing poor acting. Being a good product of her own century, she loves music and enjoys concerts, opera and musical comedy.

PERHAPS Helen will be able to do for the Biologists what A. J. Cronin did for the Medical Doctors, since she has very literary tastes and talents to add to her laboratory technique. If she were to write books, like Browning's song from Pippa Passes they would sing, "God's in His heaven, all's right with the world," because Helen is such a serene, unhurried person. But don't you for an instant think that either of those adjectives connotes inactivity, for this lassie is a sports enthusiast, being especially successful at and devoted to tennis and riding. Maybe, on second thought, that book will be more on the type of an American Biologist's Odyssey, since Helen loves to travel and cherishes a desire to cross the Atlantic on a clipper and to visit Hawaii.

With Tati, rollicking rhythm and song entered Manhattanville, via Puerto Rico, two short years ago. Carrying on the Spanish tradition here, Tati has demonstrated inexhaustible fun and energy in everything. All her natural love of music asserted itself in her successes in the Glee Club and the Madrigals. Under her baton, the Spanish choristers have retained the laurels of their yearly success at carolling. Tati herself is so vibrant that it is hard to restrict her unaffected charms to the strict bonds of words. She effervesces with gaiety, excitement, and a great enthusiasm to see and do everything worthwhile—and she finds very much worthwhile. A Spanish mind, set to the beat of a Spanish heart, has given us a memory that we shall long treasure.

BETTY's appearance is groomed and rosy as her mind is disciplined and artistic. She is one of those people who has such a clear, well-organized mind, that all her work is precise and orderly. Though an able artist, Betty is not like the hackneyed idea of one, for she has risen far above the "tearing of the hair" stage. Being of a responsible nature, it is easy to see why the 1941 Tower, for which she was Treasurer, was such a success, and why she became Treasurer of the Social Science and President of the Thumb Tack Clubs as well. The only time Betty looks a little ruffled is when we see her in the midst of a good class struggle on the Hockey field.

JANE'S refreshing and charming naïveté put the very apple blossoms and lilacs to shame, and her appearance of fragility gives this Aquatic Club member a place beside those much photographed swimmers who are a living proof that no amount of devotion to swimming will make you look like a Babe Didrickson. At the same time, that naïveté shelters a quick wit (or is it that a quick wit is just natural protection given to a naïve person?). Jane is a very clever person too, as conversation with her tête à tête or with the Essay as medium, will soon prove. Aside: Of course, girls, we all know why Jane who studied Education, and was an active troop leader and catechism teacher, is not going to follow as her life's work the profession she has studied so carefully and successfully.

Art, sports, genuine friendliness and Adele—they all go together in a beautiful harmony of composition. We scarcely think of the studio and art displays, and leave out Adele. Then too, it is no surprise to find her Vice-President of the Aquatic Club, after once seeing her ease and grace in the pool. The first impression of Adele, even before one has the chance of really knowing her, is one of disarming friendliness. Her smile is never shaded, but there in friendly greeting. Whether glowing from a Southern tan, or New York winds, Adele is always a most welcome sight, and a person we shall miss next fall.

A PERSON who startles one on every meeting with some unique idea is sure to be successful in this world, where novelty of expression is all important. Just such a genius-like character over and above her capable, persevering method of getting her work done thoroughly, is what has placed Dottie in the Brownson Honor Society. And just such a quality is what gives Dorothy a different angle on sports. Not only does she like to watch tennis and football but she likes to notice the rhythm of tennis and finds football is an emotional outlet for both player and spectator. Is it no wonder that Dorothy was elected Vice-President of the English Club and was a Saroyan actress in the Dramatic Club?

We are glad that Elinor chose a good collection of books in case of a trip to a desert island, because she simply "must go down to the sea in ships," like a character by Masefield. However, we do hope if anything happens to that ship to land her on a desert island, that said island is well stocked up with "Fridays," since she is a social-minded person as both the number of her friends and her scout leading testify. But all talk of ship-wreck is just fantasy, because the ship she sails will be too well-charted to land on any sand bars, with Elinor's knowledge of charts and logs, stars and weather idiosyncrasies. In addition, having been a faithful member of the Glee Club, she has had the best sort of navigation training from that irresistible, irrepressible King of The Pirates of Penzance.

A MATHEMATICAL, musical mind makes Mavie a memorable Manhattanville marvel. Seldom perplexed, usually at ease, frequently smiling, Mavie was always wholehearted and honest in studies and activities. A Liturgist as well as a musician, she was elected head of the Choir which functioned with true zest throughout the year. But Mavie was also an athlete. On the Varsity Hockey Team, she played a steady and intelligent game. In tennis, Mavie really shone. As member and Captain of this Varsity, she played a game all of us thoroughly enjoyed watching, especially when she "two-handed" a backstroke. For her future, we hope that her mathematical mind carries out the success of her four years at Manhattanville in years-to-come with geometric progression.

THERE comes a time when no words can say, "thank you," when no words can describe with justice, and this is the time. What words are adequate to express our appreciation for Helen's Rock of Gibraltar dependability, for her statesmanlike and kind leadership, for her efficient and intelligent administration, for her unobtrusive inspiration? None at all. And what words can capture the unique personality of Helen, as she has been in Student Government Assembly, in debates, on the hockey field, on the basketball court, in class, in the solarium, at English Club parties? Scholarly . . . whimsical . . . conscientious . . . imaginative . . . spiritual . . . practical . . . quiet . . . humorous. Indeed, she is all of these things and more, much more. . . . She is Helen Condon, for whom we are most humbly grateful.

LUCILLE COX, E. de M.

8 Grosvenor Street
Douglaston, New York

Convent of the Sacred Heart
Maplehurst, New York

As STRONG as a Beethoven symphony, as deep as reality, Cox is the original, well-integrated personality. Generous, loyal, friendly, kind and unselfish, Coxie has all the magnificence of an epic hero. Without being moody, she is always in the right mood at the right time, in the right place. Serious "in lab.," she is a precise, earnest, wholehearted scientist. Gay in the dining-room, in the gym, in Schrafft's, in the tearoom, everywhere, her wit is all humor and no malice. Will laughter shake the rafters of the little theatre so perilously again? Will the cheers in the pool be as loud again? Will the "songfests" in the red-room be as gay again? Will there ever be another Coxie 'n' Eddy?

To HORSE AND AWAY! Apart from college life this is Malin's greatest pleasure. Undoubtedly, this is rather cramped on the immediate campus, but it does not dampen Malin's fun. Through music and books, Malin captures an outlet for lively spirits. Madrigals, the Choir, Glee Club have all gained much from her enthusiasm, energy and talent. Malin has thrown herself wholeheartedly into everything musical; the outcome: Success. But Malin's own personal charm and manner are the secret of her long list of friends. Unaffected, discriminating as to tastes, always ready for fun, Malin has the sincerity and friendliness that makes one always welcome.

PLACIDITY is always an accomplishment. To see the smiling ease with which Mary ambles through college life could scarcely fail to arouse admiration. Mary has majored in sociology and history—a combination which in itself might reduce many of us to a state of depression—but despite her serious undertakings, she maintains her good-humored, and unperturbed appearance ever. She finds great delight in music, and even greater in the time spent with her friends, on and off campus. Catholic Action has been the field for much of Mary's vitality, and she has shown fine spirit and dependability. Glee Club records three years of singing as token of her loyalty. Mary's amiable manner has won many warm friendships here at college. "Her third finger, left hand?" We'd say it spells happiness.

HAVE you ever seen a movie about a musician's concert tour? Well, get to know Carolyn and in a few years you will have seen, not a movie, but a living story of one. Carolyn hopes, and we all hope for her, that her years at the piano will be rewarded. But we hardly hope for we know so well that she is a pianist of worth already. We're all sure she'll go far in this line and so we need hope no longer. Carolyn, like any real musician, finds relaxation in practicing as she finds work in practicing. Needless to say Carolyn took an active part in Glee Club, Choir and Madrigals all her years.

SPEAKING of our soft-voiced smoothie from old St. Louis, did you ever notice that just when you've picked a girl as old-fashioned and fluffy and very feminine, here at Manhattanville, she tears off for squad practice? And that you cannot call a Manhattanville athlete muscle-bound? Why dainty little Nanny Dean played basketball and hockey and thinks that week-ends are by-products of skis, chalets, snow and St. Bernards. And she is no bigger than the hour hand on a Lady's Elgin! Nanny says she is not going to make a profession of her education, but, if she were to, she would publish the most attractively illustrated history books ever seen, with all that extra Thumb Tack and Camera Club experience.

MARY HELENE DEBITETTO, E. de M.

2335 East 12th Street

Abraham Lincoln High School
Brooklyn, New York

MARY has combined quiet smiling charm and the ability of deft efficiency. Medicine has captured her fancy here at college and from the start she has given herself a goal that she plans to follow. Her other interests have been greatly accounted for by this. Doctors, hospitals, and atmosphere reeking of medical terms dominate Mary's preference in literature. Free time, not spent swimming or at sports, usually finds her in the labs. Yet Mary herself has lost nothing by the attraction the microbes hold for her. She finds plenty of moments (or let's be extravagant and say hours) for movies with her friends, and to enjoy her favorite popular art, or to listen to waltzes. Knowing Mary, we foresee success in whatever she does; her sympathy for sociology and skill in science are a great recommendation in combination with Mary.

One who ranks among the better scholars or true intellectuals of the college, and who also is an important officer and active member of several clubs and teams, is not merely likely to be, but positively will be missed when she leaves. The Basketball and Hockey varsities found a valuable player in Ann for several years. She went about a sport as she did her studies, that is, she used her head in both and that's the kind of player a team needs. Her game of tennis was used to the advantage of Manhattanville in more than a few intercollegiate matches and the tennis squad prospered under her excellent leadership as Captain. As a member of the Debating Club, Ann was a prominent speaker. As a member of the English Club, Ann's gift for verse-writing was not unused. Her contributions to the Essay were enjoyed by all and we hope to see her name beneath the title, Grimm's Fairy Tales in Verse among "Books-soon-to-be-published."

And then Rosie also gets time to play ping-pong and go horseback riding. Needless to say, Mother Morgan found her an asset in the Glee Club for four years and when one is an asset there, it means a good deal, for the Manhattanville Glee Club is one of the prides and joys of the college. And we really are sorry that Rosie must leave for we'll all miss her very much.

Ruth has an easy charm and refreshing frankness that is disarming, and which makes it an unusual pleasure to know her. Ruth is in college, as she readily admits, because "she likes to study things she is curious about." Her favorite recreation is talking. Good-natured dependability and serenity are among Ruth's admirable qualities; whether dashing to teach catechism or rushing with a history paper, you can bet she'll make it and with time to spare. "What's trump?" ask Ruth, for bridge is an integral part of her college life. Her genuine and unaffected friendliness makes Ruth a thoroughly delightful person, and one we shall miss next fall.

A COMMITTEE is needed to sell fleece-lined ski boots to the natives of Bermuda. Ellen Duggan could organize the committee, sell the boots, and have orders for more than there were in stock. The profits would, of course, go to "Catholic Action," and the whole thing would be done before you could name the sub-committees of Catholic Action. Indeed, she is so good at committee work that she got national recognition from the N. F. C. C. S. We, of course, were not surprised because she has all the qualities requisite for leadership in extra large quantities, poise, tenacity, audience contact, sincerity and personal charm. Ironically enough, apud Mother Saul, the place where Ellen most enjoys herself, the gym at tea-time, is most in need of organization.

Convent of the Sacred Heart

In art a man's character may be expressed by a portrait, or by showing various scenes from the life of the man from which we deduce his character. Dyck likes portraits when at the Museum. Carrying this out she sorts the worthwhile from the worthless things of this life and centers her attention on the former, tossing off the others with ease. In keeping with this mental characteristic, she dislikes the groping uncertainty of modern art, which wanders about in the abstract. To sum up Marion in one word, we might say—Gold. Not only has she golden hair, but Gold she was to "Everyman" in Everyman and gold she is in Manhattanville's memory. In all, her crisp appearance reflects a keen, discerning mind.

If interest in many lines is what we deem essential in a well-balanced person, Sophie is a well-balanced person. Perhaps her wide and varied interests come from extensive travel. As a child, Sophie made a perfect Heide in the mountains of Switzerland. Having lived in this trilingual country for some years, Sophie is somewhat of a linguist yet her major field is music and her minor is art. Because of her musical interests, Sophie has been valuable to the Glee Club. Then, besides all this, Sophie loves sports. SURE, she's a fine "broth" of a girl, and one you might well be proud of, for all her blatherin' about those devilish Brooklyn Dodgers, and their prospects of winning the pennant next year, and it's usually next year, too. But as we were saying, she's a charming young thing . . . though she is a bit of a grasshopper the way she's always jumping around with her basketball and her hockey and her A.A. and her clubs, and the chirping she does in the Glee Club would make your heart glad. There's no denying she's a true Celt with her love of a fine tale about leprechauns and banshees, and her Gaelic wit, for what's an Irishman without a laugh and a tear? Indeed, man, this lass might have been born beside the Shannon instead of the Gowanus.

So much the image of her twin sister, it was a long time before we could distinguish the two—even now there's room for doubt. In all her activities about college, Charlotte has shown a spirit and loyalty rarely found. Whether it is scout-leadership or long hours in the lab, she has centered all her interest and energy into it, so her evident success has been no matter of chance. In Freshman year the twins were what we call "Robin good-Fellows" for they took their proper place as handy freshmen in a good hearted way. Then they developed as any true Manhattanville girl into responsible, well-balanced personalities. Being an ardent cheerer at all varsity games even on week-ends, and a real fighter in class games, Marie was chosen as manager of the Basketball team and she certainly was all she should be in the position. Being an able singer, Mother Morgan gladly held on to "Twinny" for the Glee Club operettas. We shall never forget Tarantara with the twins among the policemen. Nor shall we ever forget Marie—"Twinny" as we call her, whom we all love.

If an alive person is one who can enjoy a variety of things, and almost everyone agrees that this is so, then Rodie is very much alive, and absolutely everyone agrees that this is so. She enjoys all types of sports, competitive, like basketball, non-competitive, like swimming, spectator, like football. An enjoyable book might be a biography or a mystery, depending on the evening's mood. No good production in the theatre will ever bore Rodie, she likes tragedies, comedies and musicals. And as for her wanderlust, well, it's just a wanderlust, the oldfashioned, "I want to see the world" variety, with a slight preference for seeing it on sea. One foreign language is usually sufficient to baffle a person in her college career. When a collegiate can claim two as major accomplishments, that is news. Barbara hits the headlines with her success in French and Italian; in the latter field, she has added to her laurels as this year's President of the Italian Club. Other than languages, art is her greatest source of pleasure, and to see Barbara sketching is to see her in characteristic pose. The sincerity and dependability which have marked Barbara's college years have made her a welcome member in every college activity. If the piano keys resound more vibrantly, if the tennis game is more spectacular, Joan is there. Small, but every inch energy and vitality, Joan has ceased to be a wonder only now that we have begun to know her. Whatever she engages in is plunged into whole-heartedly and with great zest, and the result, well, we've been gazing in awe for the past two years. Joan is a musician to the fingertips, particularly the fingertips. We have all thrilled to hear her concerts and sincerely regret that they will soon cease here. The tennis season will lose much of its flavor without Joan's spirit and skill; all sports will miss her, too, since many a class team was enlivened with her presence. The theatre, knitting, clay modelling, and playing bridge rounds off her days. Joan's success here at college has been such that there is a limited amount that the future can hold, but that we wish her, and hope for more.

Some people call her by the rather obvious name of "Red." However, she isn't the boisterously vivacious sort with which we usually associate the name. Rather, her tall, slim, graceful appearance which helped to make her such a successful usher, characterizes the charm which is Joan's. Underneath this dignity there is a person so sweet and gay that "Red" is ever attractive to many as a lasting friend. In the line of sports, Joan loves tennis and sailing. Feeling the necessity to be up to date, Joan keeps herself well-read in modern novels and enjoys popular music better than any. In college activities, Joan sang in the Glee Club for four years and membership in Catholic Action Committees testifies to her generosity and constant good spirit.

GAY is gay but she's a good deal more besides, for looking about the campus at the various girls, we don't find many like Gay. She's a real individual. Quiet and capable, she has gone through college as a welcome member in her class. For two years she was one of the loyal technicians in the Dramatic Association. Then she also was a social scientist and a mathematician. And in fall and winter, Gay turned out in a gym suit for class teams. GINNIE is very much like the Viennese waltzes that she loves so well. Like her beloved three-quarter tempo she is always serene, yet super-charged with energy, while she proudly holds aloft as a beacon, the beautiful. Her calmness is in her disposition and in her appearance, her energy is evident in her taste in sports; she just plain loves them all, and if her tennis is the mean, then she is more than good at them all. Finally Ginnie's Major, Art, and her choice of profession, Interior Decoration, are concrete proof of her undeviating devotion to beauty. Girls, another reason for keeping in touch with Ginnie besides the fact that we all like her so well, is that career of hers. "When first I saw sweet Peggy" it was a joyous day, for who does not delight to see that winning smile or revel in her quiet charm. Peggy has a way with people that makes her welcome everywhere; frowns vanish and smiles break forth when she appears. The opera and concerts have been her favorite recreations here at college. Recordings of symphonic or "sweet and slow" popular songs never escape her notice. Her other interests are patterned on the same distinction that makes Peggy herself so delightful. Her very responsive sympathy for others will be a great asset if she continues her work in sociology after college. With the whole Western Hemisphere working toward solidarity, it is fitting that Manhattanville should have its own symbol of Pan-American Good Neighborliness. She has the average North American girl's light brown hair and the average Latin American girl's dark brown eyes. She speaks English like a native and was a very active member of the active English Club. She speaks Spanish like a native and was an officer of the Spanish Club. She is a successful French student (which includes The Province in the symbol), and she was one of the elite who assisted at the séance du cercle. BEHIND a cloak of unassuming simplicity, Maryrose hides a galaxy of talents. Differential equations bow humbly to her bidding; physical phenomena relinquish their secrets to her. Ancient classics are taken from dusty oblivion, and appear in all their heroic glory. The Classical Club has basked in the enthusiasm of its President. Her mathematical prowess has in no way marred, but rather increased her interest in literature and the drama, which is Maryrose's chief delight. Here too, her choices are far from vague—in literature, the historical, psychological and travel books are her best-sellers; in drama, Shakespeare and Maxwell Anderson share the honors. Science and art are tempered well in Maryrose; as a result, we predict great success.

DOROTHY HANGARTER, E. de M.

108-55 Jewel Avenue
Forest Hills, New York

Academy of St. Joseph
Brentwood, New York

To BEGIN with life history, Dorothy is a historian. Proof? She wrote 8,000 words on History. Why? Thesis of course. And then being of a consistent nature, Dorothy likes Historical Novels best of all types of reading matter and spends a good deal of time reading them. For exercise, Dorothy takes a hand at bowling and loves to watch the Dodgers on the "Ins." Then she also loves children and knowing the need for constructive recreation, Dorothy zealously did Scout work for several years. Quietly independent Dorothy goes about college accomplishing her work yet few of us know as we do about many, just how many frets and furies Dorothy goes through when papers are due.

PERHAPS it was her penchant for O. Henry and James Hilton, those experimenters in the whimsical, which influenced raven-haired Rose to minor in Piano Music when she had chosen Social Service as her profession. The song she sings as she goes about her admirable but sometimes depressing career is guaranteed to be tuneful. She is able to cheer at her ice hockey games in any key she chooses. She can bowl a rhythmic 200 every frame. In short, she shall have music wherever she goes without rings on her fingers or bells on her toes. By the way, Rose has served her apprenticeship in Social Service very well by her faithful work as catechism teacher and Girl Scout Leader and worker for interracial understanding.

TAKE friendliness, gracious efficiency, and a genuine love of all sports, mix them together, adding much charm, and you have concocted on a small scale an idea of Connie. In tennis, hockey, swimming, Connie has dominated the scene of action, contributing spirit and leadership, and showing grand sportsmanship. Poised, both interested and interesting, she lends new vitality to whatever she undertakes. This year the Social Science Club has enjoyed great success due to Connie's keen interest in sociology and her untiring vigor as its President. Theater, art, and music keep her ever in the center of activity, and Connie and her varied tastes are an unbeatable combination for fun and friendship.

It is one thing to be a scientist in the Lab and a much greater thing to be a scientist everywhere. Emmie has accomplished the greater. All that she does is done with speed and precision. Hence Emmie has time for a great many more things than some of us. Appreciating the fact that Emmie ranks among the outstanding scientists of the college, the members of the Phi Mu Beta Chi elected her to be their President this year. Because of the fact that Emmie ranks among those who excel in scholarship, she was given the elite distinction of membership in the Brownson Honor Society. But apart from Emmie's accomplishments in science and Glee Club, she is one of the most lovable girls in her class.

One of the most delightful afternoons which many of us spent in college was at the canoe exhibition. Here Bernadette—deftly following the instructions given her—tried to drown herself and sink the canoe. Then, to the relief of our anxiety, she saved the boat and herself too. But this was not the only time Bernie starred in the pool, for the class of '42 won many a point in the swimming meets through her endeavors. And better still, Bernie is as efficient in all that she does as she is in swimming. Consistent in her taste, Bernie being a Sociology Major, loves novels with a sociological background and was an active member in the Social Science Club all during her years at Manhattanville.

THE French have an expression for that certain something about Bobbie Hogan which defies analysis, they would say of her, "qu'elle a l'air distinguée!" and so she has. Moreover, she is most refreshing and surprising; refreshing to know because of her charm, her graciousness, her kindness and her readiness to help. We owe her a debt of gratitude for her conscientious ticket service this year. Surprising because this soft-voiced quiet feminine creature's one consuming ambition is to go to South America or Mexico on an archeological expedition. And people with the "air distingué" always reach their goal.

Did Henri win Serpolette's heart? He did—and ours too when Carol played the role. Her voice would just steal your heart away, as it has stolen ours at every operetta and yearly concert where Carol has sung. Everything that Carol does is on a big scale. Her great love of music and opera has far from excluded her from sports. Who can say Carol has no time for skiing or tennis, when although we may not have seen her on skis, her skill on the courts was not unheralded? But Carol is not defined in these few aspects of her talents. Art, the theater, and good looks find Carol with decided tastes and convictions. All these and her wide travels have probably helped her to achieve that cosmopolitan air that Carol wears with such easy grace.

From Maine to Florida, Paula "goes places and sees things." She is deeply imbued with a zest for life and for the people about her, who afford her a ceaseless attraction. To see Paula is to see her in action—driving, swimming, riding horseback, or so efficiently managing our "Sunday afternoon" dances —never a dull moment! Although on the go, action does not absorb all her energy. She spends much time reading, and finds pleasure in studying the paintings of the old and new masters. For her infectious good spirits and song-leading in the Gym, Paula will long be remembered about these halls. Her vitality and interest assure success to her in whatever she attempts.

Anne Keating alias Keats is strangely enough an English Major. However it doesn't seem possible that if Keats read Keats' poetry all her life, it could dull that vim and humor which are so uniquely only Keats' possession (this time we mean our own Keats). We might describe her as energy personified, for her walk alone is worth stopping to gaze upon, to say nothing of her manner of speech. There are many energetic people who haven't been able to make themselves useful but fortunately in Keats we have one who has. Because she loves to read and to know more about life of the past and present, as depicted in literature, Keats was an able member of the Students' Book Monopoly Club.

"Reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic done to the tune of a hickory stick."

THIS jingle sums up Marion's career in college, if you picture her holding the hickory stick. She read books for Book Monopoly and minutes for the English Club; she wrote for the Tower and the Essay; she devoted her study hours to 'rithmetic; she held that hickory stick over the Dramatic Association and the Parish School dramatic society. We do not know whether she specialized in mathematics and physics because she is so very patient and efficient and so insatiably thirsty for perfection, or whether these qualities are a result of her application to these sciences. We do know, however, that these qualities plus her magnificent flair for the Simon Legree technique gave us those perfectly coordinated presentations of Romeo and Juliet, the Townley Christmas Play, and Midsummer Night's Dream.

Ann is a girl of definite tastes—and of good ones too. The years we have spent together have taught us to appreciate this. From Shakespeare to Shaw, Fielding to Marquand, all literature wields a special attraction for Ann; cross-word puzzles are her greatest relaxation. Sports play quite a part in her about-campus life. Between classes and a quick trip to the Tea Room, she finds plenty of time for swimming and hockey with the class teams. Ann, in all she does, has an air of independence and self-sufficiency that makes her opinions more valuable. Add to this, Ann's ability to assist at managing the yearly Prom with great ease, and you will see the Ann that it's been fun to know.

Pat specialized in math. and physics in college, and is one step ahead of many of us in another way, by having been a girl scout leader. COMBINE music with a Manhattanville senior, and the inevitable result is Carlotta. Since we first met and liked Carlotta, she has been associated with madrigals, choir, and the Glee Club. Her deep love of music, combined with admirable executive ability, has marked her success as President of our Glee Club. Painting too, shares in her enthusiasm for the beautiful; Fra Angelico and the liturgical artists take their place with Tchaikowsky, Brahms and Wagner, as her favorite artists. Travel in Italy has given Carlotta her unusually close alliance with the arts. Here at college class teams have gained much from the spirit and dependability she has shown. How can one little girl do that many things? and so well! and so merrily! This Merry Ruth Mouquin is truly phenomenal. She always seems to be frolicking like a lamb in a field of clover, but the facts belie such an Elysian existence. No carefree lamb could have got those book reviews in on time for the Book Monopoly Club, or worried the Glee Club through concerts and musical comedies, or kept the Girl Scouts happy and the Leaders at their posts for a whole year, or been President of the German Club. Indeed with a song in her heart and a voice to do justice to the song, Ruth has been such a good organizer that she undoubtedly will save all the money that singers usually pay to business managers by managing herself beautifully. Here's success to a rare combination; voice, dramatic ability, and business acumen.

It is here that she narrowed her variety and wisely, for being a History Major and hoping to continue in this field, she selects Historical Novels and Biographies as her favorite reading. Strangely opposite in Connie's power-to-appreciate, is the fact that she likes jazz as music and dislikes surrealistic art, yet she loves the old masters and only somewhat enjoys classical music. Living up to the taste of most American girls, Connie has a good time cheering a football team, participating in class basketball games and taking a hand at tennis.

"Babbie," as her name might imply, gives expression to all the charm and attractiveness of a James Barrie creation. Just to meet her is to wish to really know her. Her ease in conversation is probably accounted for by her genuine interest in other people and her varied tastes. Babbie is an "out and out" sport enthusiast—golf, tennis and ice-skating heading her long list. Light classical music and books are fun between clubs and classes, and daily travels. Catholic Action finds Babbie a familiar figure in its field, and she brings into it the animation and sincerity that mark all her attempts. In Babbie is richly found everything desired in a good friend.

COMING to Manhattanville in her 3rd year was no handicap to Mary Helen. She got right in the swing of things and became a very active Junior. Dramatic, poetic, artistic, athletic, Mary Helen just breezes around doing everything:—emoting in the Little Theatre, shooting for the camera club, being veddy veddy lit'r'ry with the English Club, an artiste-par-excellence with the Thumb Tack Club, a water baby with the Aquatic Club. In her spare time the girl climbs up mountains on foot, and slides down them on skis. In sooth, Mary Helen has a zest for life. She does limit her taste in music though. She excludes hillbilly songs from kinds of music she likes. We're glad you could come, "Okie."

MARY will always enjoy life, because she finds every phase of it new and exciting. If it has being, Mary wants to see it. She has an unflagging interest in life and in its pursuit. She limits her taste in travel to "all modes," going places for the first time is her favorite recreation. Mary has such an unhurried look about her, that one doesn't realize what a marvel she is, until one looks at the record and sees that Mary is perpetually "on the go," as she mixes esthetics with athletics, and devotes her time for exercise to sports with beautiful settings. Golf, skiing, and riding are her favorites, and in spite of all these activities Mary found time to be an efficient treasurer for many grateful organizations. "Never boring and never bored," is our suggested device for Mary's coat-of-arms.

From the moment of our first meeting with Audrey, we were affected by her quiet poise and the effortless way she managed to keep English papers "away from her door." Audrey has found the means of graceful living, and the secret of charming all who know her. Her manner betrays a dreaminess that is seen even when she is engrossed in one of her daily bridge games in the Gym. Although Audrey has taken part in class hockey games, her appearance has the air of delicacy and fragility. Despite this fact, we know she enjoys tennis, rhumbas, and gets a special thrill from scarey movies. Calm and sufficient, whatever the occasion, Audrey is equal to it.

"Put" is as much a wonder today as the moment we met her. Philosophy, art, music, liturgy, literature have all bowed to her powers of conquest. How she has enlarged upon the limited hours in the day is still a college mystery; but her results are formidable. In Put, one is bound to find the unusual. Her humors range from quoting Aristotle and St. Augustine to the lowly pun; from Hamlet to Alice in Wonderland. In music, Put joins in madrigals and the choir, at the same time she is active in dramatics. Russia appeals to her roving spirit as the scene of future travels. Add to this a delight in "walking in the rain," and a partiality for Eric Gill, and you'll have some picture of Put—but it still won't do her justice.

THE more one thinks, the more one knows that the quiet, dependable, unrattled person is what the world needs today. We have plenty of firebrands and muddleheads but few of the others. So we are happy to have had Alice in our company for four years—knowing that she is one of these distinguished few. Good taste is seen in her external appearance and on getting to know Alice personally, one sees this to be true in everything about her. Alice loves historical novels, semi-classical music, and operas. Alice loves to swim and took her place in the Aquatic Club and pageants along with playing tennis in the class tournament and singing in the Glee Club.

Ask yourself the question: Can energy, perseverance, capability, and good nature be combined in one person? The answer is yes. Eddy Rogers is an example. In Eddy we have found energy, while in the labs, on the hockey field and basketball court, as well as while acting on the stage. Those who saw her as Romeo will never forget that triumph. Perseverance must be the quality of one who is two years elected as varsity captain and has been awarded a gold hockey stick and basketball for four years on varsity. Capability is necessary to a scientist in good scholastic standing, and to one who is outstanding as President of the Athletic Association. Any of Eddy's many friends will vouch for her good nature which has endeared her to them.

From Hollywood come the streamlined versions of former popular classics; from it too has come Mary Ryan. In whirlwind fashion, she has swept into our hearts leaving many memories of her two short but full years here. Modern describes Mary. In painting modern art is her specialty; in literature, the mystery thriller, and the more serious contemporary novel occupy most of her free time. The spinning dial is bound to come to rest at popular music; and last minute reports claim her a would-be pilot in the air. Smiling, good-humored, California may call Mary, but she is here in our hearts to stay.

Rosie comes from Pennsylvania, went to school in Washington and came to college in New York. Is Rosie's versatile nature, then, very strange? The best place to get to know Rosie is in the Band Box before a play. Here we have loyalty, perseverance, energy, and art all combined in a most remarkable way. You must remember the make-up of Juliet and Everyman—Rosie did it. Then in the sport world, Rosie also has put in her efforts for the class basketball and hockey cups. And she is a sociology major which shows Rosie knows something about world-shaking problems. And as for free time—Rosie gets relaxation and fun out of a good mystery story and some light music.

HERE, there and everywhere Tunney's a "jolly good fellow." Her interests are wide, her friendships, wider and she herself is unique. Since the day we arrived, our wonder at the ways of Tunney has steadily increased. For, to long hours in the labs, on the courts, and managing the hockey team, she has added time for Shakespeare and reading the latest novels. Riding and basketball are companions of play-going and singing in the Glee Club, as Tunney "goes to town." But to stop here would be to miss the Tunney we have known. Yet words can never express what this Vice-President has meant to us all. SPARKLING, dark eyes, a Spanish accent little disguised—and student in the science labs, behold Leonor from Costa Rica. Leonor is one of the few pre-medical students in the graduating class. Her one aim in life is to become a doctor, and to practice in Costa Rica where women doctors are as yet rather frowned upon, and to find one is almost phenomenal. Leonor's days have been divided between labs and labs. We think of her as either wrapped up in a huge chemistry apron, which completely enfolds her, or peering through a microscope at infinitesimal beings. Other than medicine, one of her chief interests in college has been in collecting favorite American slang, which she repeats in her masking Spanish accent. The strong determination, and the power that Leonor has shown in the field of interest leads us to look forward to great future success for her in medicine.

A PRODIGIOUS, prolific producer of purled pretties, Gen would rather knit than . . . well, than almost anything; although she does enjoy bowling, and playing at being Robin Hood, with cross bow and arrow, and best of all, swatting the shuttlecock on the badminton court. Perhaps the poet is more exact than the scientist in maintaining that the eyes are "windows of the soul," and mirrors of the personality, for Genevieve, sweet Genevieve's serenity, graciousness, dependability, quiet, are all reflected in her eyes. We can not think of one woman who will be quite as conscientious, understanding, hard-working and truly Catholic a social worker as we expect Gen to be.

PREFERRING classical music and unjazzed popular music, fiction and Dickens, tells us only a bit about Helène's good taste and common sense that has put her high among the best loved of her class. Her four years on campus have given her the basis of the worthy career she hopes to follow—namely that of a social worker. She is fond of bridge to fill in an occasional bit of free time, but spends a good part of her leisure hours improving her already excellent game of tennis, which she put to use in several intercollegiate matches as a member of the varsity. Helène's love for parties as a form of recreation, shows her to be the kind of person we know she is—one loved by the group of which she is part. Her love for Italian Opera and abhorrence for Surrealism in the field of art show her power of critical analysis, which is so all important in the life of any educated person.

INDOMITABLE Justine! We are as sure as we have ever been sure of anything that Justine will be a great scientist, because she is well-equipped with all the necessary patience, practicality and ignorance of the meaning of failure. However, she is not practicality and patience alone. She has the spark without which the scientist is just a glorified test-tube-holder, and that spark, that flame, is imagination, an imagination vivid enough to make a scientist, a poet. That is certainly an unbeatable combination, vocation—science, avocation—poetry; just as an example of Justine's double personality working even in her recreation, she is a camera fiend for science's sake, and a lover of the ballet, for poetry's sake, and a reader of Dickens for fun's sake.

CLASS HISTORY

From our first days at Manhattanville, we have looked to the Seniors for inspiration and guidance, for always they are the key-note of college spirit and tradition. With regret we see our present Senior class receive their diplomas, for they have been to us an example of vigorous spirit, earnest scholarship and firm friendship.

Our first acquaintance with them was made when, as Sophomores, they hazed us sternly, with a twinkle in their eye. It was then that we discovered their infectious good-humor and quiet sense of responsibility.

The Senior class is outstanding for its dramatic talent. Who can forget the suspense in "The Trial of Karen Andre," and the puzzle of the night of December 16, or the terse drama of "Estuary House"?

We were not surprised when they won the hockey cup, for they have been famed for their athletic ability throughout their four years. Not without reason was our refrain: "The Senior team is just what it used to be."

To the Seniors we dedicate this Tower, with gratitude for the high ideals which they have left us, and in pledge that these ideals will not soon be forgotten.

JUNIOR SONG

See there she stands our Manhattanville,
Sturdy and strong in the morning sky.
Proudly we sing of our Manhattanville
Under her standard that waves on high.

Here beneath her ivy-covered walls,
Here within tradition's happy halls,
Valiant daughters, class of '43,
Pledge their loyalty.

See there she stands our Manhattanville,
Calm and serene in the evening glow,
Forever changeless, 'though our love will grow.
Always the same, our Manhattanville,
Ageless her fame,—our Manhattanville.

CLASS HISTORY

SEPTEMBER BROUGHT the Juniors back to college at once awed and elated at their new status. We moved into Founder's and felt that we had at last attained a position of dignity and importance. In a short time we became acquainted with our Freshman sisters and found our sister class friendly and completely charming.

Junior year with no Saturday classes, many club activities and the tremendous decision of major and minor has been very exciting, although we were all much sobered with the advent of war. Two afternoons a week were devoted to a First Aid course, and radios blared news broadcasts instead of swing music, there was that first feeling of tension, but general routine remained the same pleasant experience.

The Class entertainment, a presentation of the Chinese fantasy, "Lady Precious Stream," was great fun to put on, and was well received by the college. It was thrilling too, to don our caps and gowns for the first time on Mother Dammann's feast day, and to receive the congratulations of the Senior Class. We shall miss the kindness and friendliness of the Seniors, and their compelling gaiety. May we continue their tradition of scholarship and good fellowship which will long be remembered.

CLASS HISTORY

Sociability and good humor are the admirable qualities of the Sophomore class, together with an ability for hard work with seemingly little effort.

Both their ingenuity and good sportsmanship were shown during hazing week. The theme was completely modern, and we all enjoyed seeing the Freshmen, their hair neatly concealed in hair-nets, and a towel pinned to their dresses as a "black-out" precaution, and we sympathized with them when at every sound of a Sophomore's "air-raid" whistle, they dropped to the floor without a murmur. Hazing ended with both classes on terms of friendly comradery, each much impressed with the good-will of the other.

For the entertainment this year the Sophomores gave a barn-dance, complete with hay, pumpkins and cider, and all of the college in costume. Folk-dancing and competitive games were the program for the evening, and the gay and charming hostesses saw that everyone had a wonderful time.

There is no one who does not appreciate the geniality of the Sophomores, they are always willing to make a fourth for bridge, carry extra chairs, or to teach someone's Catechism class, and always with a smile.

In still another field the Sophomore class came to the fore, for in basketball and hockey, theirs is a team to watch. With such an auspicious record in all activities there is no doubt of the ever-increasing power and spirit of the Sophomore class.

CLASS HISTORY

THE COMPLETE NEWNESS of college life is always overwhelming for the first hectic weeks. But from the moment they were welcomed into Manhattanville in the Fall, the Freshmen set out to discover what was expected of them, and then did it just a little quicker and a little better.

They not only endured hazing, they enjoyed it. Not even intricate math problems, unending Latin translations, or tricky French verbs seemed to overawe them. But with determination and good-will they faced their difficulties and overcame them.

Freshman elections are momentous occasions and we all watched expectantly for the results. These once again displayed the good judgment of the Freshmen, for who could better direct the class than gay, friendly Mary Ann Roney, and charming, amiable Dorothy Murray.

We thought that we had discovered all of the good qualities of our sister-class, but their entertainment proved a hitherto unsuspected dramatic power. The play was a melodrama with mustached villain, sweet, delicate heroine and side remarks to the audience in loud stage whispers.

The Christmas Carols were made even more effective by several renditions made by the Freshman Glee Club, under the direction of Mary McCall. This club was begun last year and the example of pleasant, uniform tones and definite rhythm set up then was excellently followed by this year's class.

In the realm of sports, too, we watch with admiration, flashing figures in trim green gym suits. In all fields, sister-class, we congratulate you for your ability, and have great expectations of your future success.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Small streams grow into a river
A strong flood to the sea;
The strict shore proves, as law does,
Those bound in are free.

Unity, spreading out, colors
Each new hopeful hour,
With one loyalty mingling all others:
High hearts guard a Tower.

Helen Condon '42

WELFARE

This is the beauty of balance:
A bird poised in flight,
The arch and spread of an oak tree,
White stars in the night.

This is the wisdom of balance:
Experience paired with youth;
From them unity rises
As freedom follows truth.

Helen Condon '42

First Row: Janet Reberdy, Carol Putnam, Helen Condon. Second Row: Barbara O'Connor, Mary Jane Donovan, Betty Bopp. Absent: Patty Cameron.

CHILDREN OF MARY

"They that eat me shall yet hunger,
They that drink me shall yet thirst."
For I am but a window, wide, wide open
For Him to gaze through,
That you may look upon His secret face,
And He on you.

Though wisdom darts down out of the broad sky,
And at my knee learns,
Still I am only a lantern, a lighted lamp
Where His love burns.

Helen Condon '42

MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION

And go ye forth, the Master said—He saw the fields in readiness
For harvesting before the frost began.
He saw all nations thirsting for His Word,
And who should go to them but those who know?
So go ye forth—Not we, we have enough of laboring at school.
Yes, go ye forth—No, ask not us who freely have to freely give.
Our hands are bound, we cannot lift our eyes to see the ripening land.
But can you not your strength into the reaper's arm, and light his zeal?
Heaven glows when prayers sweep in to gleam the harvest that lies white.

Caroline Putnam '42

First Row: Ruth Mouquin, Jean Kircher, Ellen Duggan (chairman), Carol Putnam, Barbara O'Connor. Second Row: Marion Kellogg, Eileen Williams, Jeanne Peterson, Betty McCormack, Ethne Kennedy.

CATHOLIC ACTION

To know, to love, to serve Our Lord
Is our one purpose here on earth;
To be with Him—sublime reward—
Is the great reason for our birth.

To know Him we must learn and pray;
We must have truth, we must have love.
His Church, unfailing, points the way,
We laymen join with those above.

We know the truth—it sets us free,
It lifts our hearts, it lets us see.
We have all this, so let us share:
Giving the truth must be our care.

Peggy Daly '43

BROWNSON HONOR SOCIETY

Prudence was strong in our fathers of old;
The meek shall inherit where fall the bold.
Knowledge was given that we might see
The end and the purpose that brought us to be.
But without understanding we may not endure,
For who shall see God but the heart of the pure?
When minds that are earnest strive with full power
They shall achieve, and shall hasten the hour
When man shall become as he was at first,
And Wisdom shall quench our unquenchable thirst.

Sally Baxter Milne '43

SPORTS

DRAMA

A Scene from Romeo and Juliet

Scenes from A Midsummer Night's Dream

Rosemary Shea, Marion Kellogg (President), Virginia Kelly, Kathleen Andrews.

DRAMATIC ASSOCIATION

Silent, sombre tragedy searching throughout the years,
Grasping, seeking, yearning, under the shadowy veil
That hides the unseen, true reality—
Behold, you are walking in the light that leads you there,
The light that plays upon the motives of your tears,
That shines resplendent in your darkest depths,
And raises you through poignant sorrow, through ideals
To pass triumphant in the blinding light through the arch of truth.

And you, the clown of ages, who laughs in sparkling rhyme,
Yet, laughing, cries in seeking that eternal goal,
You too are bathed by that same blinding light
As you are led, unknowing, to reality.
And lo! the portals open upon unvisioned truth—
Drama has sought, has yearned, has found.

DEBATING CLUB

The air breathes echoes far flung on the winds:
Vibrant voices reaching far, far out
Like rings, a pebble spins in a still pond,
All spoken sounds, soft or shrill or strange,
The agile voice of Greece, swift as a glance,
Rome's mighty tones, strong as a firm hand,
The brisk speech of today, lightning leashed,
Hurled out on the wild winds, afire and free.
All things uttered wake and stir in the silence,
All things heard, back to Babel's jargon,
Back to the lost language of Eden, back,
To the eternal utterance, the Word.

Helen Condon '42

GLEE CLUB

Ruth Mouqin, Mary McCall, Theodora McAlpine, Marjorie Kunkel, Carlotta McAlpine (President).

CHOIR

Margaret Mary O'Rorke, Margaret Coakley (President), Dorsey Coholan.

GLEE CLUB AND CHOIR

Joy leads to singing, and a song to joy,
And those that sing here christened are in glee.
Once, shouting "Gaudeamus igitur"
Was symbol of expression spirited.
It now runs out in swelling choruses,
And operatic fancies, musical
And light. But same the spirit is that brings
It forth. The beauty loved in sound can touch,
Refresh and fill the heart of youth again.

But more is music as a selfless swell
Of praise, when voices lift the mind
to God,
And David's happy singing can inspire
The joyous burst of canticles anew.

LANGUAGE CLUBS

Down the long winds, whirling, whistling, wailing,

Rings the voice of many singing nations—

In honored strength of old from German cliffs,

Streaming down the pasture lands of France,

Pulsing restlessly from Spanish valleys,

Warm and felicitous across Italian plains.

Louder, deeper still resounds the chorus

Of full humanity, complete and one,

Led by Language to know and understand

That each can give that which his brother lacks,

And giving will receive a hundred-fold;

For all that we thought lost at Babel's tower

We found with Peter in the Gift of Tongues.

Marcella Weston '44

ENGLISH CLUB

Joan Thellusson, Justine Woolett, Jeanne Peterson, Dorothy Brodine, Virginia Kelly (President).

ENGLISH CLUB

In the beginning words of beauty sprang—
The minstrel struck their music on his lyre.
They formed the ordered patterns of an art;
From lip to lip the story passed like fire.
In silent abbeys it was writ in gold,
With all the labor of a loving heart,
Till common men could come into their own
When Caxton spread its knowledge with his art.
The thunder of machines has cried it strong
And sown it wide wherever men have trod,
And now our age can sift true words from false,
That every book may breathe the name of God.

Sally Baxter Milne '43

PHILOSOPHY CLUB

Along a black and silent road
Of doubt and fear
Poor blinded man, heart-weary, bears his load
On earth, a darkened sphere.

Out of the shades and darkness,
Out of the crying restlessness
A figure comes; with him the light
Of changeless, timeless Truth so bright.
Great God—a man can once more see
Himself, by Truth set free.

Mary Hubbard '44

PHILOSOPHY CLUB

Lisa de Luca, Carol Putnam (President), Helen Midgely.

PHI MU BETA CHI

Editha Rogers, Emmie Herbermann, Lucille Cox.

PHI MU BETA CHI

When science calls men to its standard high
And bids them search deep into its heart,
They must seek out the ruling laws of motion,
And number's perfect measurement, reflect
On life in all its varying forms, and matter
Reduced to its composing elements.
When first they call this whole external world
To pass before their keen, clear observation,
They are so spellbound by the wonders there
That they hear not the cries that rise about them
Of frail humanity, coming to lift its voice
In supplicating tones that plead for aid.
But then, as further study soon reveals
The hidden depths that were not first perceived,
The science student turns to heed the prayers
And learns to give of what he had received.

Justine Woollett '42

CAMERA CLUB
Justine Woollett (President). Absent: Patty Cameron.

CAMERA CLUB

The iris-curtained camera, ever tardy,
All unlensed the flight of Beauty follows,
Beauty too elusive, ne'er contained
Within the halting vision of a man.
But eyes of steel—bright splendor and precision—
Look, and Time holds Beauty captive,
Prisoned, changeless in the ageless light.
But this we know—and knowing, marvel more—
That far beyond the central sun is He
With whom is neither Time nor dark eclipse,
Nor shadow-band, nor hint of alteration.

CLASSICAL CLUB
Ethne Kennedy, Maryrose Hanavan (President), Adele Casey.

CLASSICAL CLUB

Ancient men of Greece, who misled your thought,
Who bade you call the secret gifts of soul
By that nine-fold name of Muse?
Were they not gifts divine
Beyond the scope of your divinities?
Have they not burned bright in souls of every age?
Would they not have dimmed with passing time
Had they not been fashioned by a mightier hand
Than that of Grecian gods?
They have turned in a greater orb than your passing realm.
And now—the Muses are the gifts of God.

Margaret Mary Sheehan '44
Betty McCormack '44

SOCIAL SCIENCE CLUB

Angry cries
Are heard from the heart of the deep,
That rise
To the light—but good men are asleep.
There is no beauty
In this city
For them who live but to die.
Why—why
Must they grovel in black sod
Who are all beloved of God?
They are crying out in pain;
We must not let them cry in vain.

Sally Baxter Milne '43

THUMB TACK CLUB

My brothers, ye be master craftsmen all,
There is no trick, no turn of line or shade,
No subtlety of stone that you ignore.
For each man's craft must strive in harmony
To reach the one goal of our seeking hearts.
And seeking heart must work with seeking hand
To the full unity of mind and will.
You must become one with the steadfast earth,
And let the world find shelter in your hearts.
The meanness and the sordidness must pass
Until your souls are filled with primal things,
Till darkness lifts its horror from your eyes,
And fills your hands with power to dream again
The vision and the glory of the goal.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Mathematical murmur of movement
While bodies and spirit accord,
Sing, to announce precision,
Blending action and time.
Many are bound in a unit,
That the many may rise above one.
Freed, each lives in the whole,
And exults in the freedom new.
By serving restraint as master,
Cast off your bonds and be free.

Ann Deely '42

ESSAY

The would-be writer strives with fervent hopes
And thoughtful brow to put in printed words
A message that will bear a meaning, clear
To all who read it, that they may be touched
Thereby, and glean some courage on their way.
But there are instruments that must be found
To aid the writer thus fulfil his dream:
There is the pen which knowledge brings to give
His writing substance; and an abler one
Presented by experience to help
Him touch reality—while Wisdom stands
Nearby to see that all is ordered well.
So aided, may the writer grasp the truth,
Give it expression on the printed page.

If some one were to give you a piano

Visit the new Steinway & Sons Record Shop in Steinway Hall. Unique collection of world's finest recordings, classical and popular. Also see the Capehart and the Magnavox Radio-Phonographs.

If a generous friend were to present you with a piano, and price were not a consideration, and the choice were left to you alone, you would select a Steinway.

Why then buy anything less when you spend your own money?

Steinway advantages include all the factors you should consider—richness of tone, perfection of action, beauty of design, and the value of the Steinway name.

In addition, the Steinway depreciates very little, and has therefore a high resale value at any time.

Let us explain how convenient we make it to purchase a Steinway.
